Frédéric Clément
Chief Strategy & Marketing Officer, Patient Care Solutions International
GE HealthCare, France

Frédéric Clément is a Paris-based healthcare technology executive with more than 20 years of experience in strategy and marketing. As Chief Strategy & Marketing Officer for GE HealthCare's international Patient Care Solutions business, he helps shape the strategy and market positioning of technologies used in patient care. He previously served as GE HealthCare's Chief Marketing Officer for Europe, the Middle East and Africa and as Interim General Manager for Digital. He holds a Doctor of Pharmacy degree from Paris Diderot University.

Clément's work spans medical technology, digital health, and cardiovascular care. At The MedTech Forum 2025, he joined representatives from industry and patient organizations to discuss how a European cardiovascular health plan could support earlier detection and more equitable access to treatment. He has also highlighted the importance of connecting cardiovascular screening with referral, diagnosis, and follow-up, and has shared perspectives on applications of artificial intelligence in electrocardiography.