

Yasmine Rahman

GP | Educator | Trainer | Appraiser | Mentor | Programme Director

New to Leadership Programme (North Central and North East London), United Kingdom

Dr. Rahman is a General Practitioner with a strong commitment to medical education, training, and workforce development in primary care. She is actively involved in supporting the next generation of clinicians through teaching, mentorship, appraisal, and structured leadership development programmes.

Her clinical background includes comprehensive GP training through the Greenwich VTS scheme, with rotations across acute medicine, emergency medicine, paediatrics, sexual health, and psychiatry. She holds additional qualifications including DRCOG and DFRSH, reflecting her special interest in women's and sexual health.

Alongside her clinical practice, Dr. Rahman plays an active role in shaping medical education and professional development across North Central and North East London. She is a GP trainer, educator, and appraiser, with a focus on developing confident, reflective, and resilient clinicians capable of thriving in modern primary care.

Her work is centred on leadership development, educational innovation, and sustained support for clinicians at different stages of their careers, particularly within general practice.
